It is time to move on Corrie. I do not think the intention of Ernie or Council is to pitch one community against another. Perhaps it is now time for Upper and Lower Capilano to get their recreation centre too. Have the residents spent ten years to date planning and working many, many volunteer hours towards these centres, if so then one would hope it would be their turn next.

I hope that the "Council Watchers ", of which I am one, although I seem to concentrate mostly on things that cost money it seems, such as the "Waterfront " which I firmly believe is for everybody not just North Vancouver as Lynn Canyon Park is for everybody, do not expect to be able to agree on all things all of the time. That after strong debate we can all agree to disagree. regards Maureen

It might be noted that neither Upper nor Lower Capilano have a community centre. On the other hand Lynn Valley has had one for years.

If I am wrong on this let me know.

Until then, please, not another word about whose turn it is.

A MESSAGE FROM ERNIE CRIST:

The people of Lynn Valley have won a new Library but they lost the community space which had been promised and was part of the original town center plan. That plan had called for a 5 story, 55,000 square foot building of which 15, 000 square feet had been allocated for community space. But the size of the building was reduced from 5 stories to 3 stories and the community space from 15,000 square feet to 3,000 square feet. At the same time the price of the project has remained the same or has even increased.

There will be a shiny new building in the center of Lynn Valley but no sizable space for seniors by way of example. The 3,000 square feet allocated for such purposes will hardly be enough for a population of over 20,000 and growing fast. There will be no space for small musical events, small theater, readings, lectures and other social or cultural activities.

If the people of Lynn Valley want to meet they will have to find another place despite the fact that they spent a great deal of money. I supported the Library since the alternative would have meant risking the project altogether. On the other hand, combination Library and community centers are common place today.

Fortunately, there is a way out which is one of the reasons why I supported the project, despite objections from many community activists and despite the fact that the financing of the project is not exactly to my liking. The commercial building adjacent to the Library, which is part of the town center project is at present earmarked for commercial space - all or at least a portion of the building could be used as a community center. I will certainly try to get approval for such a concept but unless the people of Lynn Valley come out in force as they did on the Library itself, Lynn Valley will have been shortchanged. We shall see.
