To Translink, et al

The upcoming announcement of the use of the B.C. Rail lands in North Vancouver District for a transit depot, to be made on Friday by Mayor Barbara Sharp and Translink, is extremely interesting.

As a community leader in the Lower Capilano area, I have knowledge that the B.C. Rail lands are not zoned for use as a transit depot. There has been no discussion, at least on a public level, on this issue.

I would like to ask Mayor Sharp whether she, as well as the councillors and residents of North Vancouver City, would appreciate being told what will happen in their municipality, rather than consulted!

I suggest that this announcement is very premature, and that it would only be appropriate if zoning and approval were in place.
