Dear Mayor and Council:

Well, isn't this interesting... Does it have to take a tree falling on a very eroded mountain bike trail to "try" to stop MTBers from continuing to erode it even worse than this?

Note the groundwater seeping through... This is Floppy Bunny Trail on Fromme Mtn. Note the second photo before the treefall.... Lot's of tree fall reported over MTB trails again. Tsk tsk!

Ever wonder why these trees keep falling right over MTB trails, and onto their beloved abusement park structures?

Can you say: Slow Motion Clearcut? ("courtesy" of the NSMBA and other rogue MTB trail builders and riders...) It would be best to let "Mother Nature" close the trails this way. Cutting apart the tree defeats any common sense keeping open such eroded trails. How much more will be sacrificed for this freewheeling wreckreational thrillride?

This was a photo taken of the horribly eroded trail before the treefall. Just look at all that water seeping on the trail.
So "sustainable" to rip and shred on a mountain bike! Wow! What a mess!

This was a tree that took out a MTB abusement park structure, earlier in the month on Lower Ladies Trail, Fromme ...Bravo, "Mother Nature". Your aim is so good...! Too bad nobody cares, but a handful of us concerned folk...

And another tree that took out a structure on another of Todd Fiander's creations, aptly named "Big Stupid":

It doesn't look like Mother Nature "loves" Todd "Digger" Fiander (and his ecological vandalism) as much as District Council does. Does it?...

Seriously, I guess it will have to take a mountain slope sliding down before District Council will wake up... I can only warn you -- not twist your arms. 😞

Keep adulating the NSMBA, and you WILL get your "just deserts". Take care, and good luck trying to get those all those rabid MTB monkeys off your back.... You have given those scofflaws far too much, as it stands....

The North Shore Mountain Bike Association (NSMBA) are doing a very bad job of it, Mayor and Council....
